News From The Oil Fields

News from the Ross Creek section of Estill county is to the effect that a number of operators are shut down there and things are at a standstill.

On the J. I. Raider, where Williams O'Rear and others are operating, the rig lost hold at No. 19, location and they have moved over and started fresh. On the west end of the tract they have finished putting in new power and are hooked up.

Ahead of Ross Creek production, where McEldowney, Tomlinson and others are sinking a test on the Jesse Brandenburg, they are now down 300 feet and drilling. This well is being watched with much interest as it will greatly widen the Ross Creek area, should it prove productive.

The well drilled in recently on the Simeon Rowland, by W. S. Raydure, and others, proved to be salt water in top sand. They will go to a second pay here.

This entire section of Ross Creek is proving better than expected and in others disappointing.

On the Noland Isaacs farm, of Williams and others their No. 1 is making a splendid showing.

On the Joe Collette farm the Bonanza Oil Company will have to secure another rig before they can drill in, the machine they are using being too light.

The oil fraternity is vastly interested in the decision handed down by Judge A. M. J. Cochran in the case of N. C. Norse, trustee, against Jesse Smyth and Crane and Creamer as operators and leasees of Smyth. The decision was in favor of the plaintiff. Judge Cochran overruling a motion to dismiss the suit and a rehearing of the case.

The land involved lies in the Radical district of Lee county and is valued at several million dollars. The case in question was a consolidation of 26 suits against surface owners and operators. Some of the best known operators such as L. G. Neely, the Arco Oil Company, Sun Oil Company, Blue Ridge Oil Company, Crown Oil Company, and many others have holdings here.

In Lee county, the Security Producing and Refining Company has moved on to the four acre Ed Riley tract, lying adjacent to the Preacher Mann lease and have spudded in.

One mile away on another lease of the same name, the Alakaya Oil Co., is pumping its initial well to exhaust the salt water. They have a nice showing of oil here. The same parties are at work at No. 4, Jack Spicer.

In Morgan county, on the Susan Lykins farm, located near Lewis, the Iron City Oil Company has completed No. 1, which is estimated as good for five barrels.

In Jessamine county, one mile south of Nicholasville, on the William Hoover farm, J. T. Aker and others are now down 1,000 feet and casing at their test here. They expect to drill 2,000 feet or more in an effort to locate production. These parties own 25,000 acres of leases in this vicinity.

In Lee county near the Martha Reynolds lease, the Old Dominion Oil Company is getting a 4-inch line completed from Bald Rock Flat to Bell Point and will handle their own production. A pumping station is now being constructed at Bald Rock Flat not far from the Cumberland Pipe Line Company's station at this point. The Old Dominion is now drilling its second well on the Martha Reynolds which lies adjacent to the McCombs Oil Company and the Local Oil Company's Della Hargis. The latter lease is furnishing oil to the Ketna Refining Company at Louisville.

In the western section of Lee county the Regina Oil Company is making arrangements to sink a well on the McGuire tract.

The Interstate Petroleum Company, which has two nice wells on the Rodes Hall, ahead of Ross Creek production, in Lee county, is moving on two new rigs and will have them in operation here shortly. No. 3 is now in the process of being drilled. Adjoining the Rodes Hall, on the Eli Richardson, the Kentucky Lee Oil Company is planning to sink a test. This tract contains 80 acres.

West of the Trinity Oil Company's holdings, about two thirds of a mile the Traders Oil Company will drill an offset very shortly to the Ohio Oil Company's Flahaven Land Company lease.

A new well is reported in near Zoe, in Lee county, which is credited with being a splendid producer. The oil rose 800 feet in the hole. This is No. 5, W. H. Weens, the property of Noland, Barnhart and McCall, and lies adjacent to the Eureka tract of the Southwestern Petroleum Company.
